How to play Booktious

from: <https://schoolreadinglist.co.uk>

RULE 1

Deal the cards face down and equally to all players.

RULE 2

Each player picks up the first card from top of their pile.

RULE 3

The first player chooses their best Booktious stat to read out.

RULE 4

Other players reveal whether they can beat that Booktious category stat!

RULE 5

The player with the highest Booktious stat wins the lower stat cards, adding them to the bottom of their pile. Repeat 1-5 with the winner choosing the next stat.

RULE 6

Whoever wins all the cards wins the game of Booktious!

How to play Booktious

from: <https://schoolreadinglist.co.uk>

Variation 1

Use the gold and silver Booktious 'super cards'. The player holding the super card can multiply their stat x10 with the gold card or x2 with the silver card.

Variation 2

Instead of using the highest stat to win, change the rules before the start of a game and use the lowest stat to win instead. This creates a very different game of Booktious!

Reading Challenge Idea

After each game, the winner can read the book described on their winning card, and the other players can read the books depicted on their final cards. If those books have already been read, track back to the last cards that featured unread books.

Reading Ambassadors

Play the game with mixed age groups to promote discussion in your classrooms, library groups or book clubs. Use the blank template to make your own cards.

The Booktious stats

from: <https://schoolreadinglist.co.uk>

Reading Age

Explore new books. Not every picture book is for a younger child. Not every book with a lot of pages is for older readers.

ISBN

The ISBN (International Standard Book Number) will help students and teachers to research book reviews or purchase online.

Weight

Weight requires energy to transport. Heavy books contribute more to deforestation. Can you go greener and read an ebook?

Popularity

Popularity stats are based on aggregate search engine and social media mentions.

Published

Read a new book or explore a classic. Find a book from the year you were born!

Pages

Not all great books use a lot of words!
